

For each meeting...

1) Read

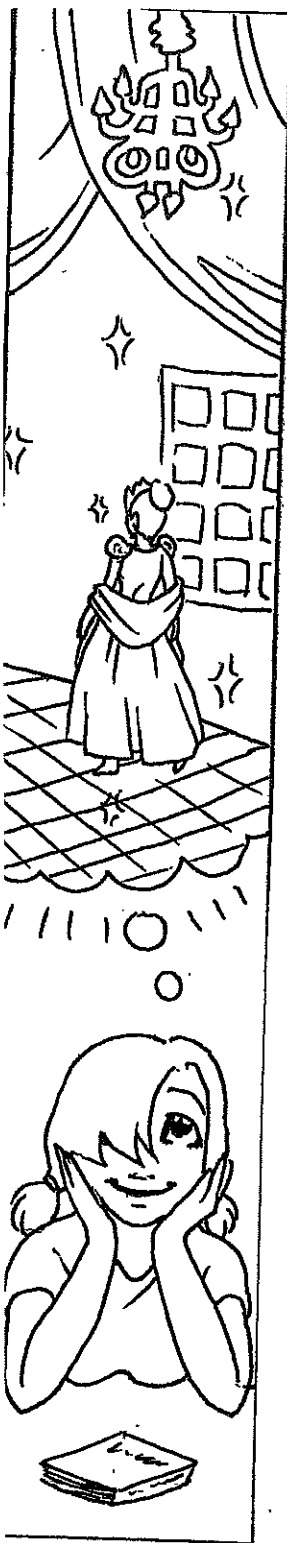

Each week your assignment is to read about $\frac{1}{4}$ of your book before your meeting. If you read more, that's okay! (just don't give away what happens to anyone else)

2) Respond (left side)

Choose one of the prompts at the top of each week's page to respond to what you've read. Circle the prompt you've chosen. Write your own prompt if you wish! You may respond to the prompt however you choose as long as it fits in the space provided and connects to the reading. When you reference a part of the story make sure to write down the page number so you can find it again during the meeting to show the group.

3) Reflect (right side)

After meeting with your group, write a short reflection about how the meeting went and what you think of the book so far. Were you prepared for the meeting? Did you contribute positively to the discussion? What will you do differently for next time? What do you like about the book already? Are there parts of the book that are confusing?

After you finish the book...

Front Cover

Design an original cover for your book with an illustration, the title, and the author. It should be colorful or nicely shaded. Your drawing should include some important aspect to the story. Be creative!

Back Cover

For the back cover you need three things:

1) Find a pivotal (really important) quote from the book. It should be only a few lines. It could be dialogue that a character speaks or just description or narration. Copy the quote at the top and include the page number where you found it. This is your hook.

2) Write a short summary of the plot. Who are the main characters? What was the main conflict in the story? How did it resolve?

3) Lastly, write a two or three sentence review of the book. Did you like or dislike the book? Make sure to explain WHY you liked or disliked the book. Be as specific as possible.
